

Dear Mom: A Family Finds Its Past in World War II Letters Home

In 1945 my father lost two brothers. In 2012 I found them.--Michelle Cahill... After retiring from Disneyland Resort in 2010, Michelle Cahill looked forward to a slow-paced retirement exploring the arts. She never expected the fantasy of Disney would collide with the reality of World War II and send her down an exciting path. In 2012, Michelle and her cousins found several hundred pages of letters flier uncles Tom and Jack, their fathers brothers, wrote to their mother during the war. The cousins never knew these boysboth were killed on bombing missions in Europe a few weeks apart near the end of the war. The discovery of these letters, and hundreds of old photos found with them, was a head-spinner Michelle never could have imagined, but eagerly welcomed. She followed a fascinating journey to meet these charming new men in her life who were previously only silent portraits. Michelles first book, DEAR MOM, A Family Finds Its Past in World War II Letters Home unravels for her generation the obscurity of Tom and Jack in a time capsule of the 1940s.
