Not illustrated. 1870 Excerpt: ...no the fashion for bare legs to come thegither. The wife maun hae something to put in the pot as weel as the man.--The Entail. Its lang or Like-to-dee fills the kirkyaird. Spoken of those who are always complaining how ill they are, and likely to die; but who, nevertheless, generally contrive to live as long as other people. Its lang or the deil dees at the dike side. That is, it will be long ere we hear of the removal or death of a particular person who is a cause of annoyance to us. Its lang or ye need cry Schew! to an egg. Its lang to Lammas. Spoken in jest when we forget to lay down bread at the table, as if we had done it designedly, because it will be long ere new bread come.--Keliy. Its like Truffys courtship, short but pithy. Its little o Gods might that makes a poor man a knight. Its muckle gars tailors laugh, but souters girn aye. Its nae laughing to girn in a widdy. To girn in a widdy is to laugh or girn when a halter is round the neck--meaning that it is no joke to be placed in a difficult or dangerous position. Its nae play when ane laughs and anither greets. Its nae shift to want. Its nae sin to tak a gude price, but in gieing ill measure. Its nae mair ferlie to see a woman greet than to see a goose gang barefit. Mattie had ill will to see me set awa on this ride, and grat awee, the silly tawpie; but its nae mair ferlie to see a woman greet than to see a goose gang barefit.--Rob Roy. Its nae wonder wasters want and lathrons lag behind. Its needless pouring water on a drowned mouse. Its neither a far road nor a foul gate. Its neither here nor there, nor yet ayont the water. Its neither rhyme nor reason. Its no aye gude i the maw whats sweet i the mouth. Its no easy ...
